

ET Farming

A few interesting facts have come to light concerning farming practices within our solar system. ET farming does not use “artificial fertilizers” to increase crop yields. Their's is a cashless co-op system base on the yield exchange with many others ET groups visiting our system. Moreover, they use no “poison sprays” for pest control. They seem to base their agriculture on the notion that all things created by nature have a specific purpose. This takes invasive species out of the equation because they keep a tight control over the balance between predator and prey. They seek a balance between harmful and helpful pests. The ET farmer uses a certain percentage of “damage and undamaged crops” for mulching and fertilizing. This is done in conjunction with “crop rotation and periodic rest cycle” for their lands. I am informed that this results in food rich in natural elements so vital for good health. They say that earth humans have turned away from these underlying cause of mother nature in favor of capitalism. That is, the greed of the few has placed many toxins in the blood stream of the whole population of earth.
